DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

1. Claims 1-4, 6, 8-13, 15-18, 20-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Ohsaki et al. (u.s.p 6,088,115).

As to claims 1-4, 11, 13, 15-17, 24, Ohsaki et al. discloses in Fig. 1, a device comprising: polarizing illumination means (10, 12) for illuminating the liquid crystal layer (9) with polarized light in predetermined state; detection light obtaining means (13, 11) for receiving specularly reflected light sent forth from the from the liquid crystal layer and increasing a ratio of a polarized component of the specularly reflected light (col. 2, lines 30-42) transmitted through the liquid crystal layer in order to obtain detection light; and light detecting means (11) for detecting the detection light.

As to claims 6, 8-10, 12, 18, 20-23, Ohsaki et al. disclose in Fig. 1, a device comprising: polarizing illumination means (10, 12) for illuminating the liquid crystal layer (9) with linearly polarized light including a first vibration plane (rays come out from 12); detection light obtaining means (11, 13) for receiving reflected light sent forth from the liquid crystal panel, and removing a polarized component of the reflected light including the first vibration plane in order to obtain detection light (rays come out from 13); and light detecting means (11) for detecting the detection light.

1. The method is considered inherent in the structure.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claims 5, 7, 14, 19, are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

3. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

As to claim 5, the prior arts do not teach or suggest the liquid crystal panel evaluating steps wherein the detection light primarily comprises a polarized component including a second vibration plane that is virtually orthogonal to the first vibration plane, the polarized component including the second vibration plane extracted from the specularly reflected light; in combination with the other claims elements.

As to claim 7, the prior arts do not teach or suggest the liquid crystal panel evaluating steps further comprising: disposing reflecting means at a back side of the liquid crystal layer, and wherein the linearly polarized light including the first vibration plane is made to be incident upon the liquid crystal panel from a front side of the liquid crystal layer; in combination with the other claimed elements.

As to claims 14, 19, the prior arts do not teach or suggest the liquid crystal panel evaluating device comprising: a polarized-light polarization axis of the polarizing means and a polarized-light absorption axis of the detection light obtaining means are substantially orthogonal to each other with reference to an optical axis; in combination with the other claimed elements.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments, see "Remark" on pages 8-12, filed on 5/19/03, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 1-22 under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of Ohsaki et al.
